

Overview

Built within the Sydney Cricket Ground Trust area adjacent to Allianz Stadium in 2019, Fleetwood delivered a double storey facility consisting of 31 modules covering over 1500sqm for the Sydney Roosters. The first-class facility was home to the Roosters in their run to back to back premierships and will be home to the Roosters for the next few years during the Allianz Stadium redevelopment scheduled to open in 2021.

Solution

The new complex consists of a reception, gym, doctor and physio rooms, ice bath rooms, lockers rooms, players' lounge along with several other amenities and an office complex for staff. The fast and effective solution built offsite has allowed the club to move in seamlessly with minimal disruption to the overall operations of the organisation. An interesting fact about the build is that a large part of the ground floor is devoted to the player's gymnasium, which is built on a concrete slab within the building envelope. Along with this the upper floor office area is serviced by both an internal staircase and a lift for easy access across the board.

Benefits

The Sydney Roosters have been able to make use of limited space and time in order to have an elite, state of the art facility ready in the fraction of the time due to a modular solution. The facility has not only provided players with a new home, it has also provided the entire club with a brand new facility for the near future.
